The applicable limit applies to customer level and not at account level. This means the applicable limit is enforced regardless of the number of accounts a customer has.

Can you provide examples for me to understand better?

Scenario 1

Situation: A Resident customer with domestic ringgit borrowing status would like to remit funds for the purpose of goods purchase but he/she transfer his/her funds from a Ringgit account to his/her foreign currency account before using the same money to pay to a vendor/supplier.

FE Notices: This remittance is subjected to RM1 million equivalent aggregate limit per calendar year due to the conversion of Ringgit into the foreign currency account first.

Scenario 2

Situation: A Resident customer with domestic ringgit borrowing status transfers foreign currency to his own account at overseas prior to transferring to the university's account for education fees payment.

FE Notices: This telegraphic transfer is subjected to RM1 million equivalent aggregate limit per calendar year due to the transfer is to own account first even though the eventual destination is for education purpose. The limit is not applicable for transfer to the university / education institution directly.

Scenario 3

Situation: A Resident customer has one housing loan/financing each with Bank X and Bank Y. The housing loan/financing with Bank X has no outstanding balance because the customer has deposited the same amount as the loan/financing he took.

FE Notices: This customer is still considered to have domestic ringgit borrowing / financing because he/she has two housing loans/financings. Housing loan/financing balances is not taken into consideration in calculating of the number of housing loan/financing outstanding.

Scenario 4

Situation: A Resident customer has domestic ringgit borrowing / financing until September when he has cancelled his borrowing / financing facilities.

FE Notices: From October onwards, he is no longer bound by the applicable limit.

Scenario 5

Situation: A Resident customer has domestic ringgit borrowing / financing would like to perform telegraphic transfer to purchase a property abroad for her daughter's accommodation for education purposes.

FE Notices: This telegraphic transfer is not subjected to RM1million aggregate limit per calendar year. However, the transfer can only be performed at branch with supporting documents such as Sales & Purchase Agreement and student visa.

Scenario 6

Situation: A Resident customer with Domestic Ringgit Borrowing would like to use ringgit-denominated credit card to invest in foreign currency assets.

FE Notices: This transaction is subjected to RM1 million equivalent aggregate limit per calendar year due to the purpose of the transaction is to invest in foreign currency assets onshore and offshore.

Scenario 7

Situation: A Resident/Non-Resident customer would like to undertake forex trading using ringgit-denominated credit card with Non-Residents (offshore trading companies/brokers)

FE Notices: Notice 1 only allows a Resident/Non-Resident to buy or sell ringgit against foreign currency or foreign currency against another foreign currency with a licensed onshore bank or any person licensed under Money Services Act 2011. In addition, Residents are not allowed to make or receive payment in foreign currency with Non-Residents for the purpose of settlement of derivatives offered or issued by a Non-Resident, unless it is permitted under

Notice 4 or any other relevant Notices.

What should I do when I need to remit and/or invest beyond the limit applicable to me?

Please seek approval from BNM and provide the approval letter to perform the transaction.

What if I wrongly declare and exceeded the applicable limit?

Please inform the bank / your Premier Relationship Manager immediately. If you have an approval letter from BNM, please provide a copy to the nearest branch.

Who can I contact for more information?
